LARNACA, April 12, (Agencies): A hijacked Kuwais Airways jumbo jet took off late last night with about 40 people aboard, after gunmen released 12 hostages but kept three members of Kuwait's royal family.

The blue-and-white Boeing 747 departed at 1:17 am (2217 GMT Tuesday) and the hijackers said they planned to fly to the North African nation of Algeria.

An authoritative Algerian source said the commandeered Kuwajti airliner was headed for Algiers late last night but no way had yet been found to end the hijack drama.

Expected

The source said the Boeing 747 was expected in Algiers after a flight of four or five hours. An official source in Kuwait said the plane's first contact was with the Kuwait airport control tower, a few minutes after takeoff from Lamaca airport.

The source said the crew members of the plane, pilot Subhi Yousif, co-pilot Eid Al Azmi and flight seingineer Ayed Al Shmailan seemed to be in good

Just before takeoff one of the gunmen said by radio:

'We deny what has been reported by radios and by the media that we are ready to hand the plane to anyone. We refuse to do that, until martyrdom." He did not refer to the hostages. The gunman called the jet "the plane of great martyrdom."

But Cyprus government spokesman Akis Fantis told reporters that his government had received assurances from unspecified "sources in Algiers" that the hostages and the plane would be

THE composition of the delegation negotiating with the hijackers changed somewhat yesterday as Michael Erodotou of civil aviation dropped out of the talks and G. Pantelis Georgiou, the general manager of Larnaca airport, came in.

No explanation was given but a source said it was the hijackers who demanded the change.

In a bid to put more pressure the hijackers gave the microphone to a Kuwaiti hostage, who appealed to Kuwait to release 17 jailed Muslim militants as demanded by the gunmen. "We urge the Kuwaiti government to try and hand over the individuals who are wanted, who number 17..." he said.

Sounding weak and apparently confused about how long his ordeal had lasted, he said:

"I urge the Kuwaiti government to release the 17 because we are tired and we have been at it for 10 days. We are all here waiting for the government to hand them over.

Sabotage not ruled out in arms dump blast

ISLAMABAD, April 12. (Agencies): The Pakistani government said today it had not ruled out sabotage as the cause of an Army arsenal explosion that poured rockets into Islamabad and killed at least 98 people.

"We are not ruling out the possibility of sabotage." Deputy Defence Minister Naeem Mahmud told Parliament.

Pakistan Television, meanwhile, said 170 teams of explosives experts, working round the clock, have so far cleared 20,000 missiles, grenades and_other weapons that lay around the twin cities of

Islamabad and Rawalpindi. President Zia-ul-Haq said yes-

35 killed as Muslims clash in Philippines

CAGAYAN DE ORO, April 12, (AP): Clashes between rival Muslim groups in the southern Philippines have left at least 35 people dead and have forced the evacuation of hundreds of civilians over the past five days, the military said today.

Regional Army spokesman Lt Col Edgar Centeno said fighting was concentrated in the mountain town of Carmen in North Cotabato province, 928 kilometres south of Manila on strife-torn Mindanao island.

Centeno said the clashes were between the Moro National Liberation Front and its main breakaway faction, the Moro Islamic Liberation Front

He said at least 400 residents of Carmen and nearby villages had evacuated since last month when the clashes were first reported.

MNLF sources downplayed the clashes. They said the fighting was between feuding families belonging to the two Muslim separatist groups. But they said the clashes were not sanctioned by the leadership of the two rebel Centeno said government troops had been sent to the area to prevent the fighting from spilling into other villages.

Hamadi is accused of kidnapping the two West Germans in an alleged attempt to force the West German government to release his brother, suspected TWA hijacker Mohammed Hamadi.

"I had no direct or indirect involvement in the kidnappings," Abbas Hamadi told the five-judge panel after his attorneys concluded their final arguments in the case.

He also accused West German federal police of violating his rights during questioning and threatening him and other family Before Hamadi's statement, defence counsel Ludwig Hoeller told the court that the defendant did not contest explosives charges against him and recommen-ded that he be sentenced to one year in prison.

But Hoeller said Hamadi should be released because be Cordes was seized at Beirut airport on Jan 17, 1987 and Schmidt was abducted from his Beirut hotel room three days later.

Summing up the defence's case after a three-month trial, Hild said Hamadi played no role in the kidnapping of Rudolf Cordes and Alfred Schmidt in January 1987 to put pressure on Bonn to release his hijack-suspect

The review was announced just hours after Iran's spiritual leader Ayatollah Khomeini said yesterday Tehran would send 150,000 pilgrims on the annual "haj" to Saudi Arabia. Saudi Arabia has already said it will not tolerate demonstrations this year and has announced quotas on pilgrims which would cut the number from Iran by two-thirds to 50,000 More than 400 people, mostly Iranians, were killed in clashes during an Iranian-led demonstration in Makkah last July.

The official Saudi Press

Agency (SPA) said King Fahd ordered the setting up of ministerial sub-committees to "study questions relating to security following a cabinet meeting late iast night.

SPA quoted Information Minister Ali Hassan Al Shaer as saying committees would be set up to "ensure the comfort of the pilgrims and to enable them to perform their prayers and duties and to worship with maximum ease and in safety and peace."

Relations between Riyadh and Tehran have been severely strained since last year's clashes in Makkah.

The annual pilgrimage is due to begin in mid-July.

Iranian complicity in the hijack drama

KUWAITI newspapers yesterday charged Iran of complicity in the week-long drama of the commandeered Kuwaiti jet liner now grounded at Lamaca airport, and urged the government not to cave in to the hijackers' demands whatever the price.

The daily Al Roi Al Aam said the ordeal has shown an ugiy collusion among the Lebanese hijackers and Iranian authorities when the Bangkok to Kuwait plane was forced to change routes and head for Mashhad in northeast Iran.

The paper added that the air pirates acquired pistols, explosives and machineguns in Mashhad, and the aircraft was refuelled despite opposition from Kuwait Foreign Ministry trouble-shooting team which went to the remote transan city. And the paper charged that Iranian officials were inhospitable to the Kuwaiti negotiating team and prevented them from disembarking from the plane that took them to Mashhad. "It is indeed tragic that innocent Muslims are being slaughtered at the hands of a band of terrorists alleging to operate under the banner of Islam," the daily stressed. In an editorial laced with sarcasm, the daily Al Anba called on Arab governments to reconsider their relations with Iron in view of Iranian hostilities against Kuwalt and subversive acts in other parts of the Arab nation, chiefly Lebanon, over the past eight years. "A reasonable stance towards Iran had been required since eight years ago. Would Arabs soon realise the facts and act accordin-gty?" questioned the paper. The daily praised the humanitarian efforts of Cypriot authorities "whose Christian values mirrored in their noble behaviour in the ordeal, which was much better than the conduct of many of our neighbours who claim to follow Islam."

Daily Al Qabas, meanwhile, said the shooting to death of a second passenger on board the plane, in cold blood, underlined the need for some sort of action to spare the lives of the remaining "We are in an unenviable position. Our brethren are held hostage under gunpoint. Their sole guilt is being the nationals of a state where law has the upper hand, and does not succumb to blackmail or intimidation," the newspaper noted. Daily Al Watan said the gross slaughter by the air pirates of two

'I spy a gripping formula'

By Gail Seery

NOWHERE to Hide is really an appalling video. Not being a fan of gory films, and loathing those which include 100 much gratuitous violence, I found the story just a little too unpleasant to tolerate. The plot itself is filmsy — take away the deaths and it would fill a happy five minutes. Or else there is some sort of battle between the actors and the director - clearly there is a bonus for any member of cast left alive at the end of the

Still, the formula worked for Shakespeare, who was quite happy to slaughter his dramatis personae, and I have to admit that at times this video is both gripping and compelling. The story centres around a military marriage. The husband gets gunned down by assassins in front of his preschool age son, but the wife, played by Amy Madigan, finds herself treated as if she is the guilty one by his fellow officers.

Amy Madigan puts up what would be a heart-rending performance of a grieving mother at her wits end trying to cope with her small son, if it weren't for one thing. Because the whole story is so much over the top, with the plot running from crisis to crisis (and "crisis" in this context means "particularly gruesome death"), the little pockets of genuinely good screen play are lost in a morass

It seems that the assassins are not content with the husband's death, and are now out to annihilate the entire family. Everywhere she runs, she is relentlessly pursued, at first by her husband's assassins, and then, after she has disposed of them with remarkable ease, by upwards of twenty nasty sol-

He is in any case carrying what the soldiers are chasing, a "helicop-ter c-ring" which is so convincingly fixed to his favourite toy robot that on the one hand his mother doesn't notice it's there, and on the other, it keeps dropping off so that their escape attempts are punctuated with his dashes to regain it. Naturally the viewer is in on the

To make his presence in the secret hideout even less desirable is his nasty little tendency of picking up homing beacons and hiding them about his person, sleeping with them under his pillow, and generally behaving like a security threat. On another level it is interesting that the only strong and well drawn character in the film is the mother. Her own bravery is unquestioned throughout. It is unusual to have this type of female character in run of the mill films like this one unless her role is directly as an adjunct to that of a more important, male character. Amy Madigan manages to play the bulk of the story with a look of fraught

In the mood for nostalgia

THE House on Carroll Street is a romantic thriller set in 1951 about an idealist who uncovers a dangerous plot to smuggle Nazi war criminals into the United States. The film stars Kelly McGillis, Jeff Daniels and Mandy Patinken. Another fine performance from Kelly McGillis, most of whose films are banned here in Kuwait. So don't miss this opportunity of seeing this fine young actress, she plays a young woman who works for a magazine, but finds that her liberal ideals are too much for a Senate Investigative Committee and for her Editor.

Out of work, she applies for a job with an elderly lady who lives on Carroll Street. There she meets a young man who seems to be in trouble and offers to help by introducing him to a lawyer she knows. britally mysecod. As shous, wider investigation about the street story to a sympathetic FBI man, who is at first rather sceptical but after an attempt on her life, becomes convinced and decides to help her try to unravel the mystery of what is happening at The House On Carroll Street. There seem to be lot of films set during the 40s and 50s coming out of Hollywood recently, they must be far enough behind us to become nostalgic about. In The Mood is based on the true life events of Eliwood "Sonny" Wisecarver, a likeable naive 15-year-old Southern California boy, who elopes with two "older" women in succession and causes a national media event in 1944 when they are arrested for kidnapping. If the movie makes any kind of point, it is merely that life has changed from the simpler black-and-white days of World War 2. Now, Wisecarver's exploits might pass unnoticed. Then, though, he shared the front page with

The major asset of the film is its cast. If the chemistry between Sonny and the women wasn't there — or if the relationships seemed incentuous — the story wouldn't work. But director Phil Alden Robinson develops them as individuals, not just the byproducts of media-hype. Dempsey is perfect as Sonny: sweet and vulnerable. Talia Balsam and Beverly D'Angelo as his paramours bring just the right amounts of bittersweet humour to the roles.

Punishment awaits the butchers

IN the last sentence of one of their recent statements, the hijackers said they were going to join the "houris" (virgins) of Paradise. This is under the assumption that since the hijackers belong to the Hezbollah, they have not enjoyed the women of earth, so the houris await them in the other life to clean their hands marred by the blood of

These devils dare to think that the virgins of paradise could be made of such criminals as they, who did not even respect the bodies of the dead, but threw them from the door of the plane in an inhuman way.

Those who watched this act, shuddered at the cruelty. Had there not been hostages to consider, these criminals would have been punished by those who witnessed this brutality. And instead of finding houris waiting for them in the other life, they would have found severe punishment for what they have done.

Seeing bodies thrown from a plane by hijackers reminds us of a savage life before mankind was introduced to civilisation or to religions, which were concluded by Islam.

Those who planned this operation will be written of in history as the worst criminals and will be severely punished. Those who disrupt the lives and threaten the security of people will not last long, even though they may think they are clever.

Seeing bodies thrown from the hijacked plane may not have bothered the rulers of Iran since they are accustomed to such things. They throw their people alive in front of the Iraqi Army in a war that has no reason or aim.

Iranian leaders are accustomed to throwing away the lives of people; they won't be affected by the tossing away a dead body.

This ugly incident of throwing, from the plane, the bodies of the two Kuwaiti hostages, killed by the enemies of Allah, wrongly named Hezbollah, will remain a stigma on those in Tehran who appear to be more human butchers than human beings.

Shortages and death take their toll

By Tim Hodlin

TEHRAN: There is snow on the mountains overlooking Tehran, but, so far, it's been a mild winter. Even so, the streets are a sea of jackets — green combat jackets.

Everyone listens to car radios. Victories are announced in northern Iraq. "Only the Kurds," shrugs a middle-aged man and hurries off to hunt for a bargain on the open market. Eight years into the war, things are tight. Rationing of staple goods has kept the masses fed, but the open market is very expensive.

Meat costs 20 times the official $4 per kilo (2.2 pounds), but bread is still cheap at 20 cents. Rationing, shortages, and death have taken their toll. The mass of the people are tired, but do not want their eight years of suffering to be wasted. Yet there is movement toward peace. The United Nations cease-fire resolution might be

The President of Iran, Ali Khamenei, outlines the Iranian position in an interview at the presidential palace.

The main issue in our view is to prevent aggression in the region by defining who the aggressor is, and punishing him. We know if it's determined who the aggressor is, it's very important for the future of Iran and iraq, and there won't be any further aggression in the future. This is why we are so persistent in determining who started the

Criticism

Peace on any other terms would make a mockery of the hundreds of thousands of deaths. It would release a tidal wave of criticism that might threaten the Islamic revolution itself.

The President is optimistic. "With God's will, if a just peace is established, many of our problems will be solved. The war consumes a major share of our resources, and all these resources could be used in a wide-ranging reconstruction after the war. On the contrary, we believe that peace will not create any problems, but eliminate them."

Despite the war, political debate goes on. There's a surprising openness of criticism of the government. Everyone moans about inflation. Most men wear beards cropped in imitation of the Holy Prophet and his early followers. A bare chin means mild dissent. A bare chin and a tie is almost a political statement.

The Ayatollah Khomeini's new pronouncements about his role as Velayat-e-faqih ("supreme Islamic judge") have tested many a conservative clergyman. Traditionalists are not happy that "Imam" Khomeini has pronounced this Islamic government as "just." That role, according to the conservatives, can only be taken by the "missing Imam," the twelfth of the blood relatives of the Holy Prophet who, according to Islamic theology, will return at the end of the world to bring true

Controversy

The president is careful when asked about the controversy. "We have a good constitution, but that doesn't mean it is perfect. After the passage of years, all constitutions show their weaknesses. We have found our weak points and hope to clarify them at the appropriate time."

Even the middle-class Iranian on a fixed civil-service salary spends most of his time speculating about the future of "Islamic"

He does not see the restoration of the ousted monarchy as remotely possible, but does miss the wealth and possibilities of the 1970s. Frightened of the principal opposition group, the Peo-ple's Mujahedin, based in Bagh-dad, he sees them as traitors and shares the official government revulsion at an eight-year-old terror campaign that has cost the regime an estimated 15,000 dead.

The intelligentsia are cynical about the West and its role in the Only when you suffer, just a little bit, do you do anything about the war," said one western-educated gradute.

It was an attitude reflected by the officers and men on the Babalan, a British-built, Iranian frigate in the Gulf.

As the first Western journalist allowed on any Iranian vessel, I spent four days patrolling the Strait of Hormuz. We ran alongside an American frigate and watched each other carefully for three hours. We stopped two ships to search for illegal contraband. For the Iranians it was all routine. · No one can possibly guess what will happen next in the Gulf, The Iranians know only too well that overnight, all analyses, expectations, and planning could suddenly evaporate. And the war goes on.

Palestinians unite for survival and rebellion

By John Rice

EL BIREH, Occupied West Bank, (AP): A web of unity has spread through the occupied lands in four months of violence, drawing Palestinians into committees for everything from tend-ing emergency gardens to run-ning the rebellion.

I think the idea is that this uprising is going to go on a long time," said Mubarak Awad, an Arab-American who promotes creation of civic action groups.

Boys and businessmen of this middle-class town turned the earth of a vacant lot this week and planted squash, tomatoes and cucumbers so their neighbourhood could have fresh produce during curfews imposed by the Israeli Army.

Last month in Arura village, an Associated Press reporter spoke with young Arabs who stood midnight watch to warn of approaching soldiers.

"There are medical committees, agricultural committees, defence committees," said Saeb Erakat, political science professor at Al Najah University. Strikes

"Many of these committees work in the open," and more secret groups organise strikes, protests and political activities in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, he said.

Many residents have stockpiled food. Others buy groceries from farmers or merchants homes rather than shops. When fresh produce is available, Palestinians often cannot buy it because of curfews. Omar, a businessman in El shops are closed, he said.

"People are now thinking of collecting wood for baking."
Omar's wife said. Israel cut off supplies of fuel oil and gasoline two weeks ago.

Samir, another committee member, said the grassroots groups would be harder for Israel to handle than labour unions, social associations and schools.

"There is no infrastructure the Israelis can control," he said. "To put it down, they'll have to arrest everybody," and in that case "you're not succeeding. You've lost control.

Pretoria launches offensive against numerous opponents

By Greg Myre

JOHANNESBURG, (AP): The ruling National Party, faced with dwindling support among right-wing whites, has launched a strong political and military offensive aimed at its numerous opponents, both foreign and

In recent weeks, President P.W. Botha's government has effectively banned 18 opposition groups, arrested prominent clergymen, threatened and raided neighbouring countries in pursuit of alleged terrorists and challenged the United Nations to impose sanctions.

The hard-line actions have provided fresh ammunition to anti-apartheid activists abroad, and suggest the government has chosen to ignore virtually all its critics except conservative whites who feel Botha is capitulating to the nation's 26-million black majority.

So far, the tough posture has not worked politically. White voters opted for the staunchly pro-apartheid Conservative Party in three special parliamen-tary elections in Match Land he conservatives appear headed for additional saids in months municipal eletions in October.

The setbacks led two progovernment newspapers to question the political prospects of the National Party and its vag defined reform proposals.

"There can be no survival without reform," the Citizen said. "But without providing the whites with the security they crave, the National Party will have a tough time surviving."

"Numerous nationalists feel the road ahead should be more clearly spelled out," said Beeld, an Afrikaans-language daily. "We get the impression that (the ordinary man) now feels the NP has risen so high above him that it has completely lost contact."

Government opponents, including blacks, white liberals, and foreign critics, say the reforms are totally inadequate. But their voices have largely been dismissed as irrelevant amidst the increasingly bitter debate between the Nationalists and the Conservatives. Crackdown

Ironically, the government's crackdown began at a time when black unrest was at its lowest level in years, the foreign sauctions campaign was on the wane and domestic opposition groups had been crippled by detentions and legal restrictions. The government campaign

• Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu, the 1984 Nobel peace prize winner, and 24 other clerics were arrested March 29 during a peaceful demonstration near parliament in Cape Town. Botha has on several occasions warned the clergy to avoid political confrontation.

LJUBLJANA, Yugoslavia, (Reuter): Events in communist Yugoslavia's relatively liberal Slovenian republic stir memories of Czechoslovakia's "Prague Spring" of 20 years ago.

The open atmosphere in Slovenia has been likened to then Czechoslovak leader Alexander Dubcek's Democratic reforms in 1968, later crushed by a Sovietled Warsaw Pact invasion.

The term "Slovenian Spring" was coined by Janez Stanovnik, winner of an unprecedented Western-style election campaign for regional president held here

It has since been picked up by several magazines and has become a common expression in

But political analysts and some Slovenian politicans say the new openness has gathered a momentum that neither Slovenian leaders nor more conservative circles in Yugoslavia could have bargained for.

Tension grows between China's military and civilian leaders

By Guy Dinmore

BEIJING, (Reuter): Tension between China's civilian and military leaders over expenditure and the future of the armed forces has been brought into the open by this year's meeting of parliament. Western analysts say.

"Discussions during the National People's Congress by military delegates reflect their fear that defence is becoming a forgotten dimension in the state's priorities," a Western military academic said.

An officer in the general staff headquarters of the People's Liberation Army criticised those who said a mobilisation law was unnecessary in a time of peace.

"If this kind of thinking is shared by senior officials, that would be quite alarming," the unnamed officer said, according to the official New China News

A Western diplomat said differences between military and government over allocation of national resources would be come more acute in coming years, with civilian leaders under pressure to meet growing demands by a consumer-conscious public. Diplomats noted that defence was 10th and last in a list of priorities presented by acting premier Li Peng to the opening of congress on March 25. Agriculture was at the top.

"In recent years, China has been saying there will be no stability without agriculture, no vitality without commerce and no prosperity without industry and all of these are correct," General Chi Haotian, chief of the general staff, said.

But the problem is that many people have not realised that there will be no security without the People's Liberation Army," China daily quoted the 58-yearold general as saying.
Diplomats said that, in public at least, Army leaders have refrained from attacking Li directly. General Yang Shangkun, a close ally of top leader Deng Xiaoping on Friday, said he was pleased with Li's report, which summarised economic achievements while pointing out the government's mistakes.

Experience "These criticisms may subtly reflect apprehension among some commanders over the rise of a new generation of civilian leaders with little experience or links with the military," said the Western academic, who asked not to be identified. Li, expected to be confirmed as premier next week, is a 59-yearold Soviet-trained engineer with no military experience.

Communist Party leader Zhao Ziyang. China's second most powerful man and groomed to succeed Deng, has had no dayto-day involvement with military affairs.

"Because the military has traditionally been an influential voice in the political process, military leaders fear they may become increasingly overlooked," the academic said. However, Zhao's promotion last year to first vice-chairman of the party's powerful central military commission reflects the need to cultivate the armed forces' patronage, he added.

Money, namely the state budget, has been the focus of fierce debate within the military. "Military leaders have come to grimace at this time of year" the academic said. Fallen

He said defence spending as a proportion of the budget has fallen from a high of 17.5 per cent in 1979 to 8.2 per cent this year. In real terms, the drop is less, from 22.3 billion yuan ($6 billion) to 21.5 billion yuan ($5.8) billion. This year saw a rise of about one billion yuan (270 million dollars) in the defence budget over 1987, however.

Western analysts said these figures do not include research and development which could add another 50 per cent. Neither do the sums include the armed forces' own earnings from arms sales and civilian production which account for a significant proportion of spend-China is believed to be the world's fifth-largest arms sup-pier and its recent sale of power-ful, medium-range missiles to Saudi Arabia was criticised by the United States. General Yang has warned colleagues that they cannot expect a big increase in the country's military budget, saying "it is absolutely necessary for the Army to engage in production and business operations" to raise their living standards. Diplomats said the PLA has shed 1.5 million men in recent years although it is still the world's largest Army, with around three million soldiers: Weapons

"What this means is that per soldier, more is being spent today than in the past, and money is being used to buy better weapons," the academic commented was again not working properly. The temperature in the Boeing 747, shared by an estimated 44 hostages with eight hijackers for a week, had soared from 15 degrees (59 Fahrenheit) to 35 degrees (95 Fahrenheit), he said.

From a financial point of view, the PLA rarely had it so good," said one military attache.

Engineers were sent to adjust a mobile air-conditioning unit hooked up to the plane. After an hour of work, the tower said a new unit had to be refuelled, meaning 15 minutes without pulled onto the tarmac at 15 minutes past midnight (2115 GMT on Tuesday). After 20 minutes, the hijacker radioed that firmes were coming into the aircraft. "This is caustic gas," he said, adding that hostages and hijackers were using oxygen bottles to help them breathe but some people had to go without as the oxygen sets were in short supply. Exhaust

The engineers were sent back and said that they discovered the fumes came from the exhaust of the ground power generator near the air-conditioner and were being sucked into the cabin.

There is no malicious game." the tower said, explaining that the ground power unit seemed to be too close to the air-conditioning intake and should be moved so the smoke would stop.

"It came by chance, special today," mused the hijacker.
The ground power unit was moved but the hijacker insisted on a replacement on the grounds it still produced too much smoke.

A new generator was sent for and the tower explained that it would run out of fuel in four hours and would have to be changed. "Okay, sir, they can bring it," the hijacker said.

The tower said that as there was no wind, the exhaust was not being blown away. The flight engineer backed up the hijacker's complaints by advising the tower that smoke was entering the cockpit.

"We hope it clears shortly and we are sorry," he was told.

While engineers switched the machines, the plane was in darkness — something that alarms the hijackers who fear troops may attempt to storm the aircraft and rescue the hostages at night.

The generator was moved west and the air-conditioner east before engineers turned them on at 1.55 am (22:55 GMT).

There is no wind so there is no chance that the exhaust will come in again," the tower radioed. "Thank you very much," replied the hijacker, sounding tired but pleased things were in order.

The engineer wants to move the air-conditioner a bit because he believes you will not get any more fumes," the tower announced minutes later. "He is free to move it," answered the hijacker. At 2.40 am (2340 GMT), the hijacker radioed that there was a new smell in the aircraft and oxygen was being used again.

The tower said the wind was now variable so engineers would have to come out to check the machines and perhaps reverse their positions beneath the plane. The hijacker suggested a seal was defective.

At 3 am (0000 GMT), the ground power unit was unplugged and the aircraft was again plunged into darkness while the engineers checked and then assured the hijacker that the seal

"The wind is changing all the time, variable, five to ten degrees," the control tower explained. "This is why this is." The ground power unit was turned back on nine minutes

The tower asked whether the smeil has gone. The hijacker told them to wait for two minutes. The tower asked if any engineer could come out to the plane to check the temperature of the airconditioner.

"Inside (the plane)?," said the hijacker, sounding more and more irritated.

The tower radioed that the engineer only wanted to check if there was ice on the air-conditioner outside the aircraft.

"He's safe to come, he's free to come," the hijacker said. By 4 am (0100 GMT), problems seemed to have eased and both sides said good night.

LONDON, April 12, (Reuter): Hostages imprisoned aboard a hijacked Kuwaiti airliner in Cyprus are experiencing huge mental and emotional stress which could baunt them for years, experts said today as the siege entered its second week.

The hijackers have executed two Kuwaiti passengers — some 44 others remain on board after their demands for refuelling went unmet. They have said the Boeing 747 is wired with explosives and early today donned their death shrouds in preparation for martyrdom.

"The stress on the passengers is colossal, their total state of health and morale must be very low indeed," said Paul Wilkinson, head of the department of politics at Aberdeen University ghastly situation. These hijackers are very sophisticated and use their violence in very organised ways which must create enormous strains and fear on the part of the hostages," Wilkinson said. On Saturday the hijackers shot dead an off-duty Kuwaiti guard. His body, bearing signs of tor-ture, was thrown off the plane. A second hostage was shot dead on Monday and his body tossed with a blood-soaked hood over its head on to the tarmac. Some passengers are reported to have been beaten. The inability to help, to have to stand by while others are being tortured is often the most unbearable kind of torture -- it

The Last Emperor sweeps Oscars with nine awards

By Ronald Clarke

LOS ANGELES, [Reuter): The Last Emperor, Italian Director Bernardo Bertolucci's spectacular look at China, has won nine Oscars, including best picture, sweeping all categories in which it was nominated for Holywood's coveted statuette.

Ex-pop star Cher and Michael Douglas took the top acting awards at the 60th annual academy award presentations, while Scotsman Sean Connery and Greek-American actress Olympia Dukakis won for their best supporting roles.

But the night belonged to Bertolucci, whose film, which tells of China coming into the 20th century as seen through the eyes of Pu Yi, who went from emperor to gardener, won every award for which it was nominated, including best director.

"I want to thank the China happy Bertolucci declared.

The spectacular Cher, once part of the singing duo of Sonny and Cher, who started taking acting lessons only eight years ago, received a standing ovation from the star-studded audience when she accepted her Oscar.

She won for her portrayal of a New York Italian widow who is reawakened by a love for her fiance's brother in Moonstruck. "I don't think this means I am somebody, but I guess I'm on my way," declared Cher, who had foresaken her trademark thigh-high boots and flimsy dresses for a black gown with a sparkling silver

"I just want to go home and eat pizza," she told reporters. Moonstruck also won two other Oscars, for John Patrick Shanley's best original screenplay and for Olympia Dukakis, who played Cher's strong but saddened mother.

Asked how his award compared with winning his only other Oscar, as producer of One Flew Over The Cackoo's Nest, Douglas replied: "This means a lot more."

Connery, the star of seven James Bond films beginning some 25 years ago, won for his role of a feisty Irish cop who helps destroy gangster Al Capone in The Untouchables. "I first came here 30 years endorse his raise. West led the queen of spades, and the hand was soon over. Declarer covered with dummy's king and East ruffed. East cashed the ace of clubs, then shifted to a diamond, and declarer still had to lose a diamond and a spade for down one.

A little more care at the first trick would have ensured the contract. Since East almost surely was going to ruff, see what a difference it would have made had declarer played low from dummy to the first trick.

If West switches suit, declarer can draw trumps and lose only one trick in each side suit. Therefore, West must persevere with spades, but he has a choice of losing options in that suit. If he continues with a low spade, declarer inserts dummy's nine and, although East ruffs, declarer will be able to eventually gain the lead, draw trumps and then take a diamond discard on a high spade. If West continues with a spade honor, declarer covers and East ruffs, but the table's A-9 in spades now constitutes a finesse position over West's 10-6, and declarer will still be able to get a diamond discard on the spades with the help of a finesse.

Non-Opec oil producers discuss output cut

OSLO, April 12, (Reuter): Seven non-Opec oil producers have been discussing cutting their oil production by almost half a million barrels a day in exchange for a cut by the 13-nation organisation, a senior Mexican oil min-

isation, a schiol Mexican on min-istry official said today.

The official, part of a delega-tion on a visit to Oslo, spoke on condition that he not be identified.

He told Reuters that Mexico and six other countries — which are to hold talks with Opec in Vienna on April 23 — had been discussing various measures to stabilise world oil prices.

Asked if a mutual cut of five per cent was being considered, he replied: "That is one option. We are all very concerned. His comments were the first confirmation from within the? group — Egypt, Angola, Mexico, China, Malaysia, Colombia and Oman - that it is talking of concrete measures to cut the world oil glut which has pushed prices down in recent months.

Five per cent of the seven countries' production would represent about 400,000 barrels a day (bpd), while a similar cut from Opec would represent about 850,000 bpd - a total of more than 1.2 million bpd.

There have been recent signs that countries outside the organisation might be willing to cooperate with Opec on oil production.

Mexico has already trimmed output. Norway, also outside Opec and Western Europe's biggest producer after Britain, has made a 7.5 percent cut in planned production growth.

But the Mexican official said that the group which would meet Opec in Vienna was made up of independent countries and that it was far from clear that they would be able or willing to implement a uniform cut.

Decision Asked whether Mexico would cut its oil production, now put atclose to three million bpd by the International Energy Agency (IEA), he said: "We have taken no decision on that yet."

He said the meeting with Opec later this month, unprecedented in the sale of discussions between the organisation and other oil producers, would be "a meeting for consultations."

Oeien said he had not been told of any specific measures planned by the non-Opec group but "we have been informed that they intend to put into effect concrete.

visible measures."

Oeien also said he had been informally invited to be present at the April 23 Vienna talks with Opec, but he declined to say vhether he planned to go.

While Norway, with the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union, was not an Opec's original list of invitees, the organisation has said it does not rule out having the Norwegians and the Russians attend.

The United States and Britain both oppose anything that suggest manipulation of the market, although the Saudi Oil Minister, Hisham Nazer, is to visit Britain this week and meet Energy Secretary Cecil Parkinson, probably tomorrow.

Norway, keen to maintain an independent image, usually sends only observers to meetings and says it will not take part in any group decisions. It would be highly unusual for a Norwegian oil minister to attend a meeting hosted by Opec.

But senior government sour-ces told Reuters Ocien had not ruled out going to Vienna, provided the meeting was not ntended to take policy decisions. We cannot afford to exclude anything, with the oil market the way it is at the moment," a source

Meanwhile, Venezuelan President Jaime Lusinchi was greeted by Balinese dancing girls today at the start of a state visit designed to kindle closer ties with fellow-Opec member Indonesia. Crucial Lusinchi, accompanied by a 40-member delegation including Foreign Minister German Nava Carrillo, was welcomed on arrival at Indonesia's resort island of Bali by Energy Minister Ginandjar Kartasasmita.

Indonesia and Venezuela are key non-Arab moderates within the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (Opec), and both are members of the organisation's pricing committee scheduled to have crucial talks this month with non-Opec producers.

It is the first visit by a Latin American head of state to Indonesia during President Suharto's 22-year rule, and Venezuelan Ambassador Jesus Garcia Coronado said they would discuss ways of promoting political and economic ties with southeast Asia's larges: nation.

The Venezuelan president is scheduled to meet Subarto in Jakarta tomorrow.

Ginandjar said yesterday that Indonesia was trying to act as peacemaker, along with Venezuela and Nigeria, to bridge differences within Opec over future strategy. Together with Saudi Arabia and Algeria, they form the influential five-man pricing committee.

"We hope if the three of us act together then we can bring unity to Opec. As is known, there are different views that are fairly basic within the Opec body. For instance between Iran and Saudi Arabia," he said.

"Especially with Venezuela I talked about how we can protect the unity of Opec. Our views with Venezuela are precisely the same, cuts of between five and 10 per cent, while Saudi Arabia favours preserving Opec's market share in the face of larger non-Opec sales, industry sources said. Speaking to Reuters before the arrival of the president, Ginandjar said a cut in global production of 700,000 barrels a day should be enough to bring oil prices back up to around $18.

If non-Opec producers cut back to 1987 levels it would trim 500,000 barrels a day from the world market. He said cuts in production above quotas by Opec members would save an additional 200,000 barrels.

"I think that is enough to bring oil prices back up to $18 a barrel," he stated. Opec's price committee is scheduled to meet in Vienna later this month for unprecedented talks between the Organisation and non-Opec producers.

Kuwait Fund loans for water projects in Senegal

THE Kuwait Fund for Arab Economic Development has extended two loans totalling $11.87 million to Senegal for water projects in rural areas.

The first loan of $9.13 million will be used to provide 2.80 million cu. metres of drinking water per year for rural areas. The project includes the construction of 212 water centres and 10 ponds across the country, except in the Cape Verde region. Work begins this year and will be completed in 1991.

The total cost of the project is estimated at $20.46 million, 45 per cent of it covered by the Kuwait Fund.

The 25-year loan includes five years of grace and bears an annual interest rate of 1.50 per cent.

The second credit of $2.74 million will help bridge the gap in the financing of an emergency rural water supply project for Sen-egal's Thies and eastern regions. The Kuwaiti government provided financing to the project in 1983 in the form of a grant under the auspices of the committee of Islamic solidarity with countries of the sahel. The scheme will provide drinking water to 23 villages in Thies and 24 in East Senegal. The total cost is estimated at more than $8 million, 34 per cent of it covered by the Kuwait Fund and the balance by the grant earlier provided by the Kuwaiti government. The project, which started in 1984, is expected to be completed in 1989. The 24-year loan includes a grace period of four years and bears an interest rate of one per

Both agreements were signed by Bader Mishari Al Humaidhi, director general of the Kuwait Fund and Serigne Lamine Diop, Senegal's Minister of Economy and Finance.

Business is booming again in Tangier

TANGIER, April 12, (Reuter): Business is booming again in Tangier, if only in a small way in the 13-acre (six-hectare) free trade zone inside the harbour on the straits of Gibraltar.

For most people, Tangier evokes an era of financial skulduggery and commercial derring-do when the city was an international zone governed in a free and easy way by a dozen nations.

In those days there were as many banks as bistros, it was an international smuggling centre, and the setting for many spy trovels featuring Dean's Bar or the creaky Minzah hotel.

But the international zone was d after Morocco becam independent of France and Spain in 1956. The money-changers left, the smugglers sailed away, and the economy drifted into the doldrums.

Cheaper

The cosmopolitan community also shrank. Woolworth heiress Barbara Hutton abandoned her palace on the mountain. Like many other long-time residents, the honourable Robert Montagu De Vere Eliot went home with his butler and family silver "because it is cheaper to live in Cornwall."

Tourists still flock to the city in search of the exotic and Moorish mysteries, but as retired British consul William Pullyblank says sadly: "Things ain't what they used to be."

Complaints from local businessmen that the city had become an economic backwater convinced the government to set up the free trade zone in 1962 in an effort to revive activity.

The idea was slow to catch on. Some merchants set up shop to trade mainly in duty-free goods to supply ships. One theory held that this was the only activity allowed. There are 23 such firms, three banks, an insurance company and a post office.

The government decree regulating the Tangier free trade zone does not mention industrial activity. There are now eight factories in the zone and a ninth is being built.

Factories

Mohamed Sekkouri, the zone manager, cannot remember who set up the first industrial plant, but he says once it started there was a rush to set up factories so that today the zone is full.

"Industrial activity is not banned, therefore people have assumed that it is permitted, Sekkouri told Reuters.

Oil trade between Nigeria and US increases

LAGOS, Nigeria, April 12, (AP): Nigeria's crude oil exports to the United States rose 20 per cent in 1987 making Nigeria the fourth largest oil supplier to the US, according to figures released today by the Nigerian National Petroleum Corp (NNPC).

Daily crude oil exports to the United States reached 524,000 barrels compared with the 1986 figure of 436,750 barrels a day. Corporation officials attributed the increase to a reduction in domestic Nigerian oil consumption and last year's more stable international oil market. The NNPC said Saudi Arabia is the top supplier.

Advanced TV technology to make public debut in Japan

BOSTON, April 12, (Reuter): Japanese viewers will be able to watch the Olympics this year on television sets with such sharp detail and realistic colour that it will seem as though they are watching a high quality movie. The broadcasts of the summer games from Seoul, to 200 television sets in 50 public locations throughout Japan, will be the first large public demonstration of the biggest advance in television picture quality since colour was introduced.

They will also represent a victory for the Japanese in their battle with European and American broadcasters, manufacturers and governments over standards for the new technology.

Images At issue is high definition television, usually referred to as HDTV, a technology that makes television images as sharp and detailed as the best quality movies. industry analysts say the market for a new generation of television sets could reach $20 to 30 billion in the United States alone by 1995, and possibly twice that in Japan, where the technology is expected to arrive much electronics market to Japan. Sharp Television today is transmitted as images broken into 525 horizontal lines, called scan lines. HDTV expands the number of lines to 1,125, creating an image as sharp as 35 millimeter film. The new format also expands the television screen to a rectangle with a width-to-height ratio of five-to-three instead of the four-to-three ratio of conventional sets.

The problem with HDTV is that it requires a band width five times wider than is allocated to traditional television signals, making it incompatible with existing broadcast equipment and television sets.

US-Soviet trade talks open

MOSCOW, April 12 (UPI): US Secretary of Commerce, William Verity and Deputy Minister for Foreign Economic Relations, Alexander Kachanov, opened the 10th session of the joint US-Soviet trade commission today with both sides apparently eager to increase the flow of goods between the two countries. As the government talks began, 500 US businessmen under the auspices of the non-governmental US-USSR Trade and Economic Council met 300 Soviet counterparts for two days of talks aimed at improving business-to-business contacts.

On his arrival vesterday. Verity warned that any increase in trade depended on improvements in other parts of the superpower relationship.

Kachanov echoed Verity's sentiments by demanding that Washington ease what he termed "discriminatory" restrictions on trade which are directly linked to Soviet performance in the human rights field. He also warned that no improvement in trade was possible until the restrictions were lif-

The United States, through the Jackson-Vanik amendment to the 1974 trade act, prohibits extension of US government credits and most favoured nation status to any Communist country that restricts free emigration of its citizens. The amendment sponsored by Democratic Senator Henry Jackson of Washington and Democratic Congressman Charles Vanik of Ohio was prompted by US concern over the Soviet Union's treatment of its Jewish population.

"The US government supports the expansion of peaceful, mutually beneficial trade and economic relations between the United States and the Soviet Union, and we hope to reach agreement on some specific steps that can expand our trade within current policies," he said.

"It's very interesting but a bit vulgar," said Aleftina Koznovo of the Soviet Chamber of Commerce after hearing an illustrated talk on how Coca-Cola Co launched a new, low-calorie brand of the famous soft drink.

Goods "I will pass on what I have learnt to Soviet enterprises but at the moment we don't need much advertising because we don't have enough goods. Maybe after 'perestroika' we will need it," she added. She was referring to Kremlin leader Mikhail Gorbachev's economic reforms which Moscow says have opened up new prospects for foreign firms to expand business with the Soviet Union.

The 500 executives were discussing projects such as joint ventures with some 300 Soviet managers at the annual meeting of the American-Soviet Trade and Economic Council (Astec), a private group linking US business and Soviet industry. Problems

At the advertising seminar, Marc Hamburger, Coca-Cola's assistant vice-president for marketing, showed television commercials to illustrate how 'diet coke' was sold worldwide. "Having a superior product doesn't mean much unless the consumer knows about it. Your package must stand out on the shelf," he told a curious but suspicious audience. "How do you convince people that advertisements tell the truth?" asked a Soviet listener. The answer was that in a free market the consumer has choice and if the seller strains his credibility the disappointed customer shops elsewhere. American managers at the trade fair said one of their greatest problems in doing business with Soviet firms was finding a common economic language.

"Once we understood each other's concepts we had few problems in negotiating," said James Verrant of industrial control systems maker Honeywell Inc, which yesterday announced the launch of a joint venture aimed at helping to modernise the Soviet chemical fertiliser industry. Not all Soviet participants at the seminar needed to be convinced of the benefits of advertising. 'We must follow their example. We have good products but we need to show they are good," said Bogdan Lischina, director of the 'Azot' chemical factory in Severodonetsk in the Ukraine.

Claims

Lack of advertising is one of the first features which strikes foreign visitors to the Soviet Union. People hear by word of mouth when desirable items go on sale and, given the shortage of many goods, that is enough to ensure a sellout.

Meanwhile, two New Jersey enterpreneurs watched with satisfaction today as Moscow residents lined up in snow flurries to taste American pizza dispensed by the latest Soviet-US joint

The offer of free delivery will remain unfulfilled for the foreseeable future, but the steady flow of Russians seemed to accept the other claims.

U.K. SHARES AT LOWS IN QUIET AFTERNOON TRADING LONDON, APRIL 12, REUTER - SHARE PRICES DRIFTED TO THEIR OWS IN QUIET AFTERNOON TRADING, WITH TODAY'S EARLY 9.6 POINT GAIN IN THE FTSE 100 INDEX WIPED OUT AS WALL STREET FAILED TO MAKE HEADWAY AT THE OPENING TODAY, DEALERS SAID.

WALL STREET'S MODEST GAIN OVERNIGHT AND THE INABILITY OF TH DOW JONES INDUSTRIAL AVERAGE TO STAY ABOVE 2,100 TODAY WERE DISCOURAGING BUYERS AND AT 1443 GMT THE FTSE 100 WAS DOWN ONE POINT TO TODAY'S LOW OF 1,809.5 AFTER 1,820.1 AT 0830 GMT. DEALERS SAID INVESTOR RELUCTANCE TO ESTABLISH NEW POSITIONS AHEAD OF WEDNESDAY'S GROUP OF SEVEN MEETING IN WASHINGTON

LARGELY ACCOUNTED FOR TODAY'S LOW VOLUME. "WE'RE NOT REALLY EXPECTING TOO MUCH OUT OF WASHINGTON OMORROW BUT NO-ONE WANTS TO BE UNPLEASANTLY SURPRISED," ONE TRADER REMARKED. DEALERS MOSTLY EXPECT THE G-7 MEETING WILL RESULT IN A STATEMENT IN FAVOUR OF CURRENCY STABILITY RATHER THAN PRODUCING ANY NEW INITIATIVE ON CURRENCIES.

JAPANESE FINANCE MINISTER KIICHI MIYAZAWA EARLIER TODAY SAID HE EXPECTED NO NEW CURRENCY INITIATIVES FROM THE G-7 MEETING. DEALERS EXPECT TRADING TO CONTINUE QUIET UNTIL THURSDAY, WHICH BRINGS THE ANNOUNCEMENT OF U.S. TRADE FIGURES FOR FEBRUARY. ANALYSTS FORECAST THE DEFICIT MIGHT NARROW TO 11.8 BILLION DLRS AFTER 12.44 BILLION IN JANUARY.

LONDON, APRIL 12, REUTER - GOLD BULLION ENDED A FAIRLY SUBDUED TRADING DAY AT 451.00/451.50 DLRS AN OUNCE, TWO DLRS ABOVE MONDAY'S CLOSE OF 449.00/449.50 DLRS.

GOLD WAS KEPT TO A TIGHT TWO DLRS RANGE WITH MOST OPERATORS SIDELINED AHEAD OF WEDNESDAY'S GROUP OF SEVEN (G7) MEETING IN WASHINGTON AND THURSDAY'S U.S. FEBRUARY TRADE FIGURES. DEALERS

IT OPENED AT 450.40/450.90 DLRS FOLLOWING OVERNIGHT GAINS IN THE U.S., BUT AN EARLY RETRACEMENT IN FUTURES TODAY SAW LONDON CLOSE JUST BELOW ITS HIGH OF 451.50/452.00 DLRS. GOLD WAS FIXED AT 450.20 AND 450.80 DLRS DURING THE RESPECTIVE SESSIONS.

London Money Warket

LONDON, APRIL 12, REUTER - MONEY RATES ENDED AROUND 1/16 PUINT HIGHER AS STERLING FELL BACK ON THE FOREIGN EXCHANGES AND TRADING WAS LACKLUSTRE AHEAD OF TOMORROW'S GROUP OF SEVEN MEETING AND THURSDAY'S U.S. TRADE DATA.

HOWEVER, DEALERS SAID STERLING'S ATTRACTION MAY HAVE FADED ONLY TEMPORARILY AND IF THE DOLLAR COMES UNDER PRESSURE AS A RESULT OF THE TRADE REPORT, A FURTHER TEST OF THE 3.14 MARK BARRIER COULD BE SEEN IN THE NEAR TERM.

IF THIS HAPPENS, THEY SAID, A FURTHER INTEREST RATE CUT CANNOT BE RULED OUT, BUT AT PRESENT MARKET RATES ARE TRADING AROUND LEVELS COMPATIBLE WITH CURRENT EIGHT PCT BASE RATES.

Wall Street Market Report

New York, April 12; Reuter -- Wall Street stocks were narrowly mixed as blue chips battled 2100 resistance with only moderate support. Brokers say many investors are out of the market awaiting the G-7 meeting tomorrow and the US trade deficit report on Thursday. A narrowing is expected. The Dow 30 index was unchanged at 2096 but a few more issues showed losses than gains... USX jumped one to 33. C.L. Lawrence Inc. put out a buy recommendation on the stock, partly because it can benefit from soaring oil prices.

OVERNIGHT AND A FIRMER DOLLAR, BROKERS SAID.

BUT FEW INVESTORS ARE WILLING TO TAKE MAJOR POSITIONS AHEAD OF THIS WEEK'S EVENTS, AND SOME HAVE STARTED TO CASH IN ON ADVANCES WHICH TOOK THE INDEX TO A NEW HIGH ON MONDAY. MAJOR JAPANESE SECURITIES HOUSES ARE KEEPING LOW PROFILES IN ORDER TO PREVENT THE MARKET FROM SOARING TOO HIGH, TOO

IN ORDER 10 PREVENT THE MARKET FROM SUAKING TOO HIGH, TOO FAST, BROKERS SAID. ONLY ONE OF THE BIG FOUR BROKERAGES WAS A NET BUYER IN TODAY'S TRADE, THEY ADDED. THERE IS STILL A PERSISTENT FEAR OF A FURTHER TIGHTENING

OF MARGIN REQUIREMENTS SHOULD THE INDEX PASS THE 27,000-POINT MARK AT A FEVERISH PITCH, BROKERS SAID.
MARGIN REQUIREMENTS ON THE BUYING AND SELLING OF JAPANESE

EQUITIES WERE INCREASED EFFECTIVE MARCH 17. MANY ARE AFRAID THAT THE TOKYO STOCK EXCHANGE WILL CLAMP DOWN AGAIN ON SPECULATIVE TRADE IF THEY FEEL THE MARKET IS OVERHEATED.

KD deposits mixed in moderate trade

KUWAITI dinar deposits were mixed in moderate trade yesterday, with long-term maturities easing following Central Bank intervention but short dates rising amid tight liquidity.

G-GULE CEMENT . 0.015 .----

Dealers said rates for some fixed periods declined after the Central Bank bought 91-day treasury bills at 99.75 per cent on the secondary market, injecting fresh funds.

Rates for spot-next and tomorrow-next displayed a firmer tone in response to an initial liquidity shortage in day-to-day

Tomorrow-next dealt at seven per cent, three points above Monday levels. Spot-next rose to seven, six per cent from six, 5-1/2.

Declined

One-month deposits declined 1/4 point to 6-3/4, 1/2 per cent while two-months eased 1/8 point to 6-1/8, 5-5/8 per cent. Three-months edged up 1/8 point to 6-3/8, 5/8 per cent. Six-months to one-year were little changed at 6-1/4, 5-3/4 per

The Central Bank adjusted its dinar exchange rate softer to 0.27456/66 to the dollar from 0.27417/27 on Monday. Commercial banks quoted spot rates of 0.27460/70. Meanwhile, Saudi riyal interbank deposits showed sharp early gains yesterday as banks in both the kingdom and Bahrain scrambled for funds, but trading later calmed and rates settled back, dealers said.

Banks started by snapping up any funds on offer to cover short positions, with some buying the riyal outright against the dollar. There was a brief moment of panic," one said.

Spot-next was driven as high as 8-1/2, eight per cent from late Monday levels of 6-7/8, 3/8 and the spot riyal was firm at 3.7498/7503 to the dollar. But shortdated funds later retreated to 7-1/2, seven per cent and the riyal eased back to 3.7503/06.

Reason

There was little apparent reason for the early scramble for funds. But dealers described a nervous market, with banks anxious to cover positions ahead of the Muslim holy month of Ramadan starting next week when volume thins considerably.

An extended one-month maturity, tiding banks over to May 25 and the end of a post-Ramadan maturity, tiding banks over to May 25 and the end of a post-Ramadan holiday, firmed 1/16 point over Monday levels to trade at 6-13/16, 5/8 per cent.

Three-month funds were unchanged at 6-15/16, 3/4 per cent, while six months held at a barely changed 7-3/16, 1/16 per cent.

Oil prices continue strong

LONDON, April 12, (Reuter): Crude oil prices continued their rise on international spot markets today on speculation that talks in 10 days' time between key Opec ministers and outside producers could lead to some kind of pact to trim production. A senior Mexican oil ministry official told Reuters in Oslo that a group of seven non-Opec countries were discussing a five per cent cut in their output levels in exchange for a similar sacrifice by Opec — as one option to stabilise world prices.

The official, who spoke on condition that he not be identified, said, "we are all very concerned."

Measures

His statement was the first confirmation from within the group that it is talking of concrete measures to curb output.

Crude prices have soared by over one dollar a barrel - with the key United States West Texas Intermediate crude topping $18 today - on weekend news that ec ministers would meet with at least seven non-Opec producers in Vienna.

_ 129_شو_ _ 128_سو__

Only two days later, on April 25, all ministers from the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (Opec) are to gather. Previously, they had not been due to meet before June 8.

Opec president Rilwanu Lukman largely blamed rising non-Opec production for exacerbating the weakness on oil markets. However, the Mexican official noted that it was far from clear whether the non-member group would be able or willing to implement a uniform cut. Besides Mexico, it comprises Angola, China, Colombia, Egypt, Malaysia, Mexico and Oman.

Japan to make new proposal to ease debt crisis

IMF meetings to focus on debt

WASHINGTON, April 12, (Reuter): With leading industrial nations convinced there is no need to change exchange rates, finance officials gathering today for a series of meetings this week, were focusing on the world debt

Last year's angry economic policy disputes among major nations have been replaced by a glow of harmony, allowing officials to turn their attention to the even more intractable problem of Third World debt. Japan's Finance Minister Kiichi Miyazawa, speaking in Tokyo before leaving for

Washington, said he would make a new proposal to ease the debt

Scheme International Monetary Fund (IMF) officials have already worked out a new scheme to provide more aid to debtor countries in time for this week's semiannual meetings of the Fund and World Bank. We are pleased that a great deal of progress has been accomplished in the lead up to these meetings," a senior US Treasury official said. "Important progress has been made with major debtors."

The new IMF pool of funds would compensate countries that are trying to restructure their economies for a rise in interest rates that increases their debt burden.

The proposal is in line with Washington's carrot-and-stick approach to the debt crisis. which ties aid to market-oriented

Measures

But such restructuring, involving politically difficult belt-tightening measures such as public spending, is already unpopular in many Third World countries, which are likely to take a mixed view of the new aid facility.

The formal IMF meetings begin on Thursday and will be preceded by a gathering of fin-ance ministers and central bankers from the Group of Seven (G-7) industrial nations.

Miyazawa said he did not expect the Group of Seven — the United States, Japan, West Germany, Britain, France, Canada and Italy — to take any new currency initiatives but to confirm a policy coordination statement made last December. Officials from other G-7 countries have also been at pains to stress their satisfaction with recent currency stability, trying to avoid raising expectations in the financial markets that any new deal on exchange or interest rates is at hand.

"It is just going to be a routine meeting and we are all trying to keep expectations to a minimum," one central banker said in Switzerland on Monday. Everyone wanted a stable dollar and we have got it."

Crash

The official calm is based on the view that the world economy has held up surprisingly well since last October's stock market

"The general assessment of the situation is more confident than four weeks ago ... It is more and more obvious that economic development in most industrial countries is stronger than it was feared and expected at the end of the year," the banker said.
Outspoken US criticism of West German monetary policy last October was one of the causes of the stock market crash and subsequent fall in the dollar, as it gave financial markets the impression that international cooperation to solve world trade

But a senior US Treasury official praised West German economic policy on Monday, as the Bonn government raised its forecast for growth this year to over two per cent, and Japan announced a fall in its trade sur-

The critical tones of the Group of Seven officials are likely to be reserved for the newly industrialised countries of Asia such as Taiwan and South Korea.

Their booming economies have given them substantial trade surpluses with the US so that Washington now wants them to revalue their currencies to make their exports dearer and American imports cheaper.

The International Monetary Fund (IMF), whose policies have frequently been blamed for social and political upheaval in poor countries, is striving to shed its image as a harsh enforcer of economic austerity.
Under the leadership of Michel Camdessus, formerly governor of the Bank of France, the IMF is trying to make it easier for governments to implement the tough economic reforms that the fund prescribes in return for emergency financial assistance.

The fund is an anathema in broad areas of the Third World. Slogans denouncing the IMF are common throughout Latin America. In 1984, over 50 people were killed in the Dominican Republic in riots touched off by price increases that the fund had ordered. In 1985, the Sudanese government was toppled by the military after the IMF suspended

Advice

Fear of such turmoil deters many governments from seeking timely advice from the fund. By procrastinating, their economic problems worsen and the medicine the fund eventually has to order is stronger.

Camdessus wants to break this vicious circle by giving countries more time to reform their economies, streamlining the conditions attached to loans and assuring borrowers in advance that they will be protected from external shocks such as soaring interest rates or slumping commodity prices.

To finance the more active role he envisages, Camdessus, who took over the helm of the fund in 1987, wants a 50 per cent rise in the IMF's capital base, now $90

New international body to guarantee investment

WASHINGTON, April 12, (AP): Creation of a new worldwide body to insure private investors against loss from war and other hostile action was due to be announced today by Barber Conable, president of the World

The object is to attract more direct investment to Third World countries to build industries they need so they can produce more goods, create jobs and make more payments on their debts. New investments would also reduce the need to add to their existing debt. now over $1 trillion.

LONDON, April 12, (Reuter): The dollar steadied in Europe today and dealers said its shortterm fate hinged largely on the outcome of a meeting in Washington on Wednesday of finance ministers and central bankers of the Group of Seven leading industrial nations.

The pound sterling declined again, still suffering from the effects of British interest rate cuts announced on Friday in a bid to deflect some of the speculative funds drawn to British investiments over the past month by relatively high rates.
"We had a little bit of movement early on but since then the market has fallen asleep," said a senior West German bank dealer in Frankfurt. "The mood is one of wait-and-Mixed

They saw its short-term fate as being determined largely by the dollar, itself dependent on the outcome of the routine G-7 meeting in Washington which is being held in the context of the International Monetary Fund's spring meeting this week.

Conflict between preservation and human needs

Tiger conservation takes human toll

By Adam Kelliher

jedel Selli guiti

ARAMPUR, India. (UPI): Nemai Haldar, a wiry sun-scorched fisherman, will never forget the day a Bengal tiger manled his partner to death and then tried to drag the bloodied body into the jungle to eat.
"I wrestled the dead man from the tiger," said Haldar, 35, who bears a livid scar on his arm from the incident three years ago. "When a tiger attacks, you only know when it is upon you, not before."

Haldar's friend was one of more than 600 people killed by the big cats since 1973, when the government set aside a 1,500 square mile tiger preserve in the Sunderbans, a vast swathe of ungle in West Bengal traversed by countless tributaries of the Ganges river.

Tiger attacks also have claimed hundreds of lives in the other 14 areas of India where preserves were established under 'Project Tiger,' a programme aimed at saving India's tigers from extinction.

In pursuing the altruistic goal of saving the tigers, the 15year-old programme has closed to some of India's poorest peoole huge areas abundant in free food and fuel.

Nowhere is the conflict between preservation and human need more evident than in Arampur, a150-family hamlet on the edge of the Sunderbans (which means beautiful forest') preservation area. It can be reached by a six-hour car and boat trip from Calcutta.

Tigers have eaten about 50 fishermen — the sole profession of the impoverished villagers — prompting locals to rename the settlement Vidhwapara, Bengali for "the abode of windows."

The tigers should be killed," said Anjana Biswas, 60, whose hijsband, brother-in-law and nephew all have been con-

Authorities provide 5,000 rupees ($385) compensation to next of kin in a tiger death, but most of the village women clad in white mourning saris said they were forced to depend on friends and relatives for survival.

Project Tiger officials appreciate the economic pressures that encourage an expanding population to enter the sanctuary for for its enticing resources, but say they will not open the nature reserve.

'Given a choice, everyone would want to have free access to a strongroom in bank, but this is not possible," said Arin Ghosh, Project Tiger's local director. "Our efforts have turned the area into a nursery. If

About 40,000 tigers inhabited India in 1900, but excessive hunting and poaching reduced the population to about 2,000. Project Tiger has succeeded in rebuilding the population to about 4,000, officials said. Some 300 tigers now prowl the Sunderbans. But Ghosh denied that attacks have increased with the population surge. He said more people were killed before the project began, when tigers roamed over wider areas.

A tiger typically singles out may stalk its prey for up to two days before pouncing on the victim from behind. Only one in 10 people attacked survive. usually in rare incidents when the tiger is spotted before it

"The whole operation takes few seconds," said Ghosh. We must look at human beings as another form of animal. Because of the occupation of the people of the Sunderbans, they make themselves easy prey to the tigers."

The fishermen cast nets in small creeks and are attacked when they wade in beside the dense foliage to retrieve their catch. Wood and honey gatherers are mauled as they forage deep in the jungle.

'I ask the men, their wives ask them, not to go back into the jungles," said Sarala Mullick, 55, whose husband was eaten by a tiger 10 years ago. "But they must. It is their livelihood. They are born fishermen.'

Officials said about two years ago tigers were killing more than 100 people annually a rate they said was unmatched anywhere in the world This prompted innovative steps to dampen the beasts' taste for human flesh.

Any person entering the Sunderbans sanctuary now must wear a mask of a human face on the back of his head. This is said to make a tiger believe it is being watched as it stalks its victim from behind.

Honey and wood collectors also deter attacks by wearing fiberglass backplates studded with sharp spikes. Among the bushes sit human dummies that give a stunning electric shock if

Officials said the tactics have made the tigers wary of attacking humans, with only 31 deaths in the Sunderbans recorded in 1987, the last some six months ago.

FRONT ROYAL, Va.: Pushing open the cage door sends the tiny monkeys inside scrambling for cover.

"They have to be taught everything, even how to peel a banana and look behind leaves for bugs, "says Mike Morgan, a spokesman for the National Zoo, which runs the sprawling research complex here devoted to breeding and studying rare

These golden-lion tamarins
- named for their lion-like plumes of orange hair — are being groomed for the South American jungle. The animals, which have never been outside a zoo in their lives, will eventually be flown to Brazil and released into the rain forest in which the species once thrived.

They're just one of several species being "reintroduced" to the wild in countries around the world. Others include the Arabian oryx in Oman, the Pere David's deer in China, and an exotic bird called the Jalak Bali in Indonesia.

The rise of reintroduction programmes underscores a fundamental shift in the way 200s do business. These programmes are costly and controversial and hold the allure of putting depleted species back into nature. In the past, when zoos needed to replace an animal, they could just buy another pulled from the wild. But as a growing number of species have become depleted in their native habitats, zoos have had to become skilled at breeding the animals themselves. New reproductive technologies and greater understanding of the biology of exotic animals have been crucial to this develop-

Today, animals living in different zoos are managed as though they were one large colony, with mates sometimes transferred thousands of miles so that the population maintains genetic diversity.

Reintroductions carry this trend toward close management of endangered species one step further, using well-established zoo population to restock the wild. The goldenlion tamarin, for instance, now has a self-sustaining captive population of about 500 animals in 90 zoos worldwide.

Before being released into the wild, small groups of the squirrel-size primates are given survival training, such as being shown how to forage for food. At last count, two dozen captive-born animals were living in Brazilian jungle preserves closely monitored by scientists.

Typical "training" procedures include offering the animals a wider variety of foods and hiding food around the animals' cage, forcing them to search it out the way they would in the jungle. Cage interiors are designed to include plenty of unstable branches, bunches of leaves, and other details that condition the monkeys for moving around unfamiliar surroundings

"After the first year, we realised that the animals were klutzy - they didn't know how to move through the trees, says Devra Kleiman, associate director for research at the National Zoo.

The animals even had to be coaxed to go out on narrow branches, she says, since most zoo interiors had large, stable branches.

"These sorts of programmes can't be undertaken by a single institution -- so they literally force cooperation," says Richard Block, director of public programmes at the World Wildlife Fund.

Eleven United States zoos contributed to the reintroduction of the Jalak Balis in Indonesia, for example. The effort began when it was found that the wild population of the birds had dwindled to about 60. while zoos in North American had more than 500 and could readily breed more. The US zoos agreed to produce 40 surplus birds last year, which were sent to a zoo in Surabaja, "Captivity changes the behaviour of animals." so you can't just dump them into the wild, says Chris Wemmer, head of the Conservation and Research Centre in rural Virginia. The centre, an agency of the Smithsonian Institution's National Zoological Park in Washington, is a vast laboratory for working with endangered species, only some of which are earmarked for reintroduction.

In a valley outside Dr Wemmer's office, a herd of highly endangered Pere David's deer gather behind a clump of trees to avoid the bitter January

According to Wemmer, reintroductions have been attempted with at least 60 different vertebrates, ranging from the peregrine falcon to the musk

As early as the 1890s, an American naturalist began releasing hand-reared snowy egrets into newly created habitat in the Mississippi Delta. And in Europe, a programme to reintroduce captive-bred eagle owls has been under way since World War II.

But even advocates of reintroduction are quick to point out its limitations.

Only a tiny fraction of species can be saved through such programmes. Often, the reason the animal disappeared in the first place makes reintroduction impractical. When wilderness is cleared for farmland, for instance, it may become impossible to find enough suitable habitat.

"These are also very costly programmes, so you can't afford to do a lot of them Wemmer says. The golden-lion tamarin programme, for instance, costs more than $100,000 a year.

Some analysts worry about spending such large amounts on highly endangered species some of which appear destined to become extinct no matter how hard scientists try to prevent it. The same money directed toward protecting habitats might accomplish more in the long run, some Others question the ethics of tampering so heavily with wild animals. Many objected last year, for example, when biolog-ists captured the last of the freeflying California condors. The birds were added to a breeding programme that appears years away from putting any creatures back into the wild. With the golden-lion tamarin, the first step toward reintroduction was figuring out how to keep the animal from going extinct in captivity. By the early 1970s, there were only about 70 animals in captivity and not many more than that living in fragments of jungle in Nobody was sure why the animals didn't breed well in captivity. Then researchers began experimenting with new ideas in managing the animals. They changed the animals' diet to match more closely what they eat in the wild and began allowing them to live in family groups, rather than the usual mixed breeding colonies. "We're still learning every day about these animals," says one researcher working on the project. Each new piece of information helps add to the picture, he says, and helps ensure the survival of the

Naturalists row over world's oldest fish

The 5st-long coelacanth, the only fish with primitive legs bones and joints in four of its fins that prompted the Comoran fishermen to dub it the "walking fish" — is said to be a relatively easy catch for an expedition adequately equip-

Although Dr Fricke's group is in a position to carry out the New York Aquarium's assignment, its leader vehemently rejects the idea. He is planning another submarine photogra-phic expedition this June to add to his extraordinary archive of photographs and films of the coelacanth cavorting in the cold, deep waters surrounding the island nation of Comoros.

He succeeded for the first time last year in photographing the weird movements and feeding habits of his survivor from the Mesozoic erea. For Dr Fricke's cameras, coelacanths performed headstands on the sea bed and demonstrated how they can swim upside-down as the move lazily along the ocean

"It's outrageous," Dr Fricke said of the aquarium's plans.
"I don't believe it's possible to keep one of these animals alive in captivity, after the trauma it undergoes being caught at a great depth, being readily de-pressurised and then being exposed to warm surface water that disrupts its mechanism for absorbing oxygen. "More important, if a coelacanth ever should reach an aquarium alive, other aquariums will try to get their own specimens, and these fish are not numerous enough to survive the toll that would be

"Already we see the Comoro fishermen responding to the economic incentives scientists have created. They are changing their techniques, consciously trying to catch more

An obscure coelacanth black market has been created. The carcasses of the specimens caught by the Comoran islanders are frozen and sold for good money by island exporters in touch with foreign scien-

The island government offers a bounty of $200 (£110) to fishermen who bring in a coelacanth, but most go after the far higher price offered on a standing basis by Comoran

All this is happening on the golden anniversary of the first catch of a coelacanth, an event that created a sensation among naturalists. Until a Comoran fisherman brought his catch to the surface in 1938, the species was believed to have died out 90 million years ago.

Coelacanths previously were known from abundant fossils. Since 1938, only a few dozen have been caught, all by commercial fishermen.

Some naturalists say that close relatives of modern coelacanths may have evolved about 350 million years ago into the first land-dwelling amphibians, and thus were a link in the evolution of all land vertebrates, including Homo

Hawks attack with human-like cunning

Hawks attack with the precision of a military unit

Professor James Bednarz, after more than 400 hours of observation in the New Mexico desert has the first documented proof that hawks are able to cooperate in organising themselves into hunting groups.

By Adrian Berry

HAWKS attack their prey with an almost human-like cunning. They bluff and feint and lay traps "with the precision of a military unit," a scientist who has spent hundreds of hours watching them hunt said at the weekend.

This was the first documented proof that hawks are able to cooperate in organising themselves into hunting groups, said Prof James Bednarz, research director of the Hawk Mountain Sanctuary in Kempton, Pennsylvania, in a report in a recent issue of 'Science',

In more than 400 hours of observation in the New Mexico desert, he was able "to his amazement" to see groups of five to six hawks use two basic co-ordinated attacks to bring down rabbits.

In the most common tactic, which he called the "surprise the desert hawks attacked a rabbit from several directions at once, forcing it to stay away from cover.

"They will work the rabbit in such a way that it becomes men-tally and physically exhaus-ted," he said. "They keep it until it makes the wrong one." If the rabbit once left its back unprotected, a hawk would swop and deliver a lethal slashing blow to the back of the neck That was the only way that the hawk, which weighed less than two pounds, could kill a jack rabbit weighing up to seven moving and making decisions pounds. Another tactic which he observed was even more unex-pected. He called it the "flush and ambush." A team of hawks would chase a rabbit until it took cover in a burrow. Two or three hawks would perch nearby while two more entered the burrow and chased the rabbit out. Then the perched hawks would drop swiftly for the kill.

"Entering the rabit burrow is a bluff," Prof Bednarz said, "because the tunnels are too narrow for the hawks to kill in them. But the rabbit doesn't know this and it stupidly flees into the open air."

The birds seemed to communicate with body movement. As the hunt began, they would be hundreds of yards apart. But when one sighted a possible meal, it flapped its wings in a way that attracted its fellows and the hunt was on.

FAMILY DOCTOR By DR ALLAN BRUCKHEIM

QUESTION: I know I've heard the term, always with a bad meaning, but I'm really not sure I understand it at all. What is meant by an "ectopic pregnancy"? What makes it so dangerous that doctors always seem very ANSWER: Ectopic means "out of place." An ectopic pregnancy is when the foetus starts to develop anywhere except in the uterus. The most common site of an ectopic pregnancy is the fallopian tubes, but it also can occur in the ovary, in the entrance to the tube, at the point the tube joins the uterus and at the mouth of the uterus.

Ectopic pregnancies are dangerous because only the uterus can expand with a growing foetus. A growing foetus will burst a fallopian tube within a few weeks. This usually kills the fetus and the bleeding that results can kill the mother. Although there have been instances of a healthy baby growing outside the uterus, it is an event bordering on the miraculous. Ectopic pregnancy is a major cause of death during pregnancy. Less seriously, it can result in the loss of a fallopian tube and sterility.

Many ectopic pregnancies abort spontaneously, before the tube ruptures. The embryo is reabsorbed into the body and the woman may never even know she was pregnant. The symptoms of an ectopic pregnancy include abdominal pain and bleeding from the vagina, and is often confused with appendicitis, an intestinal "bug" or a blad-

The incidence of ectopic pregnancies is rising. This is primarily due to the increase in sexually transmitted diseases, which cause scarring that blocks the tubes. Improvements in testing are also raising the statistics of ectopic pregnancies as they are detected earlier. QUESTION: My uncle had Lou Gehrig's Disease. Will I get it? How do you know that it's coming? ANSWER: Lou Gehrig's Disease—technically, amyotrophic lateral scierosis — is a devastating neuromuscular disorder that strikes adults in the prime of their lives. The disease usually progresses rapidly, killing its victims in two to five years. Right now, little is known of the causes of the disease. Researchers do not believe it is a hereditary disease for the most part. However, they do not rule out the possibility of genetic predisposition, as there have been cases of a familial form of the disease, affecting more than one member of a family. Without more information about your family relationship, it's hard to give you an absolute answer, but my opinion that the odds are very much in your favour, and that your chances of being affected by this disease is slim.

Early symptoms usually begin with a weakening in one or both hands. They may begin to twitch and be unresponsive. The muscles in the palms and fingers begin to atrophy and the victim may have difficulty picking up small things or even using a pen or pencil.

The arms and shoulders may be the next areas to become affected. The legs may soon become weak and stiff. In some cases, the body's breathing apparatus is affected and breathing is impaired. This takes a toll on the patient's ability to articulate, and speech may become slurred. With this knowledge, you must stay aware of your own activity, and check out any problems that seem to

Swindell takes Indians past Orioles

LEVELAND, April 12, (AP): Someone should pinch the Cleveland Indians before this thing really gets out of hand.

"You hope it doesn't end, but you know anything can hap-pen," Indians left-hander Greg Swindell said last night after he pitched his second complete game of the season, putting Cleveland in first place in the American League East with a 7-2 victory over the winless Baluniore Orioles.

The victory was Cleveland's sixth straight after losing to Exas on opening day. Coupled with New York's 17-9 loss at Toronto earlier yesterday, it put the Indians a half-game ahead of the 5-1 Yankees. That game was the only other contest in the AL, with Milwaukee at Boston postponed by Raun.

Alone
The Indians, off to their best start since 1966, haven't been alone in first at any point in any season since April 16, 1983. They shared first briefly in May 1986. "We're up there all alone," said Swindell, who struck out eight and didn't walk a batter. "It might not last very long, but we might as well enjoy it while we're there. I just want to have fun while I can." That's realistic talk from someone who saw a portion of Cleveland's 101 losses a year ago. The Indians also are sober game was 4:16 between the Yan-kees and Orioles on June 8, 1986. The Major League record is 4:18 in a National League game bet-ween Los Angeles and San Francisco in 1962.

"They scored enough runs for three (games) and we scored enough for two," Yankees first baseman Don Mattingly said. The fans got their money's Reds 4, Giants 0 Mario Soto has learned his les-sons well. Some of the educating has come painfully - Soto underwent shoulder surgery and missed all but the first few weeks of last season while on the disabled list.

Soto took a major step in com-ing back from that hiatus with a strong spring training. After faltering on opening day, the for-mer ace of the Cincinnati pitching staff threw a four-hitter last night in leading the Reds past the San Francisco Giants 4-0.

Soto's shutout was the third in the National League this season. The Giants have lost two of them, the other to Orel Hershiser last week. Kelly Downs has started both of the shutout losses for San Francisco.

Pirates 5, Phillies 1 The Pirates stayed a game ahead of the Cubs in the National League East. Certainly, it's early to be talking about standings, but, in Pittsburgh, they rarely get to see the top of the division.

Barry Bonds, off to a fast start, tripled and scored in the first inning and hit a solo home run in the third. Mike Lavalliere clinched it with a three-run double in the eighth before the largest home crowd in Pirates' history.

"We're off to a good start and that's great," Pittsburgh manager Jim Leyland said of the 4-2 record. "But I don't emphasise it because if you don't get off to a good start, you can't cancel the season. That's why I don't put a lot of emphasis on a good start or a bad start. It's a 162-game season.

Cubs 6, Cardinals 0 Greg Maddux, who pitched a shutout last week, almost had another one. He blanked St Louis for eight innings, then Bob Horner doubled for the 1,000th hit of his career and Terry Pendleton singled him home.

But the Cubs already were in control. Maddux also singled, doubled and scored twice in a 13hit attack.

Chicago, off to its best start since winning seven of its first eight games in 1985, improved to 5-1, the NL East's best record. St Louis dipped to 1-5.

"I'm learning how to pitch," Maddux said of his quick start. "It's my curveball. I didn't have one last year, so they don't know

Tyson (right) and King.

Tyson asserting his independence

NEW YORK, April 12, (Reuter): Now that heavyweight champion Mike Tyson seems to have it all - youth, a shuddering dominance of the ring, a beautiful wife and a child on the way --- he wants to take control of his financial life, too. "Tyson is bringing in his lawyer and accountant to look at things," Al Braverman, a spok-esman for promoter Don King, said yesterday.

Details Braverman said that Tyson, 21, had asked King - promoter of Tyson's title defence on June 27 against Michael Spinks — to explain the financial details of the fight.

"They had a long meeting in Los Angeles over the weekend, Braverman said. He would not give specifics, saying only that, "they covered everything."

Tyson, whose management team of Bill Cayton and the late

Jim Jacobs helped make him at 21 the youngest heavyweight champion in history, is guaranteed "well over $20 million for the Spinks fight," a spokesman for Cayton said.

Spinks will receive $13 million, he added.

Tyson had let Jacobs take complete control of his financial matters, often saying: "My man-agers tell me who to fight and when. I just go where the money

But now Tyson is concerned about whether he has received as good a deal as possible for the Spinks fight, the New York Times reported yesterday. Tyson, who recently married actress Robin Givens, was quoted by the Times as saying on Saturday: "I have a wife, a child on the way. It's my obligation to take control.

Tyson's new assertiveness about finances follows the death last month of Jacobs, who was very close to the young champion. It also follows speculation that King and others are attempting to wrest control from Cayton of the Tyson moneymachine.

"That's just not true," Braver-man said. "Don doesn't want to steal any fighter. He just wants to protect his position. He doesn't have any paper (contract with Cayton as Tyson's promoter). He never did have any paper. With Jimmy (Jacobs) he didn't Asked if King now had a contract with Tyson, Braverman would say only: "That's hard to Braverman said that Jacobs gave King "a deathbed promise that he would be Tyson's promoter as long as Tyson held the title."

Jordan hold Kuwait to goalless draw

KUALA LUMPUR, April 12, (Reuter): Jordan, showing improved form in their second game, held favourites Kuwait to a goalless draw in the their Asian Cup qualifying soccer match today.

The Jordanians, who struggled to beat the unfancied Pakistanis 1-0 on Sunday, were a transformed team but failed to get past Kuwaiti goalkeeper Sameer Sa'id.

Kuwait's best chance came in the 76th minute when Salah Al Hasawi's header hit the crossbar and Muh'd Al Ajmi struck the rebound wide.

Wednesday is a rest day. Kuwait got off a winning start last Friday by beating Japan 1-0. The Japanese, however, beat Malaysia 1-0 last night.

Jordan who beat Pakistan 1-0 last Sunday, played their hearts out to hold Kuwait to the scoreless draw.

Third round of Kuwait National Championship on Friday

Wazzan aims at gaining as many points as possible

By Gail Seery

WITH the third round of the Kuwait National Championship set to take place on Friday, one of Kuwait's best known and most capable drivers, Tareq Al Wazzan, is out to gain as many points as possible in order to boost his flagging championship bid. Wazzan is still one of the Arab world's most internationally accomplished drivers. He started rallies, or the nearest equivalent to the type of event KTMSD organises today, as long ago as 1973. In 1978 he took second place in the Kuwait International, and the following year became the first Arab driver to rally in Europe. He has driven a wide range of different cars, from BMWs to Minis, and still seems set to baffle his competition, by being totally reluctant to reveal which car he will be driving in any given event. He had originally intended to make a return to a conventional type of rally car for this round of the championship. His Toyota Celica was shipped to Dubai for repairs following a broken gearbox in the last rally of last season, which forced Wazzan and his navigator Khaled Khalifa back into second place. The car was expected to be back in Kuwait in good time for Wazzan to enter it for Friday's rally if he chose to do

"When I saw these stages," Al Wazzan told the Arab Times, "I knew that my Range Rover would have an advantage." After practice he said that the stages were "beautiful for the Range Rover." This means that once again, he has made the decision to sacrifice the speed of the Toyota for the strength of the Range Rover.

However, in the Kuwait International last month, that same wisdom turned sour. He had deliberately chosed the 4x4 vehicle because, he said, it was stronger, and he couldn't run the risk of damaging his car on the undeniably rough stages of the first day, because he needed it in one piece for every rally of the season if he was going to be able to take the Championship again.

Remark

He broke down frustratingly close to the start of the eyent, just a few kilometres into the Atraf stage. "There was a small jump. It wasn't dangerous, and all I had in the pace notes was a remark that countrol would be needed on landing. What happened was that we went to the left, and then stopped. When we looked we saw that the wheel had come away and the front axle was broken. I was very disappointed."

At that point Wazzan had been lying second in the National Championship, just 5 points behind reigning Champion

Wazzan in action during second round. Ahmed Al Hilal. Now he finds himself in eighth place, and has some tough work ahead of him as he struggles to make up-the points with a series of very good results in the rest of the year's

In the event it was not to be Hilal who posed the biggest threat to Wazzan's championship hopes. He also broke on the first stage, with problems on his Toyota's timing belt. Instead, Miskulnig, who was the first local entrant home, picked up the maximum of 48 points, putting him into the lead, just one point in front of Chihab, a former national champion.

Hilal himself is lying in equal fifth place with 28 points, and is no longer Wazzan's major problem. Although Faez Chi-hab's car is relatively low powered, he has the tenacity and experience to make up for this with sound results throughout the season.

He is adamant that he will be contesting all rallies, despite an expected move to Dubai where he will work as editor of Saeed Al Hajri's car magazine Al Syara. He could well take this year's championship if his plans bear

Josef Miskulnig is also out for the championship, but will be unable to participate in this rally as he is out of the country. Instead, his navigator Klaus Schwingenshlogl will be partnering Peter Freiseneger in the VW Bee-

Zafiri has suffered a long run of bad luck with mechanical problems forcing him out of each event since last May's night rally when he came in second to Wazzan. However, with the right car behind him this driver could well move rapidly up the champion-
